Specialists in LIMS development, implementation and support, the Harrises started A Byte of Advice in 1995. They have nine years experience in the LIMS arena, in particular project management, development, code modification, support and training for Automated Compliance System's (ACS) Seedpak system. Their expertise includes real-world lab experience, and they combine Deborah's extensive background in chemistry with Kyle's technical skills to perform code modification and generation; technical support for users and DBAs; training; project implementation; and upgrade strategies. They are also familiar with PE Nelson's SQL*LIMS product. As needed, they can quickly organize a team of experts to address any requirement.

Martin Goffman Associates is a full service business and technical research organization that was founded in 1986 by Dr. Martin Goffman, a Ph.D. chemist with over twenty years of laboratory experience. The company caters to pharmaceutical, chemical, environmental, research and contract laboratories, for organizations of 10-12 people to major international corporations with locations worldwide.

The company functions as unbiased LIMS consultants, offering no LIMS of their own, with no vested interest in recommending one vendor's system over another. Nor do they write custom software for consulting clients.

Services offered include needs analysis and LIMS implementation into commercial environments. Consulting services can be as broad or as narrow as the client requires, whether the project ranges from an information audit to providing the technical expertise to implement a new LIMS. User requirement and feasibility studies can be conducted along with evaluation of new products. Customized LIMS presentations, training and short courses are also available and can be tailored for a specific client's needs.
